MAINE LOBSTER FISHERS

The lobster fishermen all Maine coast from Cliff Island port are up in arms against ing out of an act passed by Legislature entitled "An act for the granting of lobster giving state wide jurisdiction ens." They claim that the act is directly antagonistic to the interests of the lobster fishing the Maine coast, and if allowed come a law will work great and impose unnecessary bur the fishermen. They propose the referendum as to this sending out petitions to all towns for signatures.

The principal objection men find to the law is the limited power conferred wardens, they being emp case of short lobsters bein the possession of a fisher away his license and prac him out of business, th similar authority over the and the dealer.
